Construction is simple: (1) knit two tubes for feet and legs, (2) join them into a single tube for body and head, and (3) knit two tubes for hands and arms, and sew them to the body. You add stuffing as you go, and the variations are endless! Your child can go through the photos and create a custom doll, by selecting from different feet (such as laced tennis shoes, snow boots, Mary Janes, flip-flops), legs (torn jeans, pants, mini-skirts), tops (turtleneck, polo shirt, decorated t-shirts), hands and arms (with or without fingers, short or long sleeves), and hair styles (straight, wild, bicolor-dyed, braids). Skin tones are determined by your choice of suggested yarn colors. The dolls' clothing is usually knitted in (as part of the body tube). However, there are patterns for essential accessories (such as a hoodie, dress, purses, hats, and scarves). If your child loves fantasy, you can use the instructions for varying the basic doll pattern to create a mermaid, angel, cat, bear, vampire, or other creature. The book includes simple forms to fill in to designate which feet, legs, torso, face, arms, and extras are to go into your child's personal doll. All of the instructions are clear and easy to follow. Each doll is about 14 inches high. (I estimated this by adding up pattern rows and dividing by the author's row gauge.) The basic doll takes about 220 yards of worsted weight yarn, knitted at a gauge of 5 stitches and 7 rows to the inch on US 7 double-pointed needles. (Achieving exact gauge isn't important, because toys don't have to fit anyone.) Accessories require additional yarn, in small amounts, and of course you will need more than one color of yarn (for skin tones and clothing). However, you can get great results with inexpensive yarns: the sample dolls are knitted with Cascade and Wool of the Andes yarns. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Plenty of Variety -- You are sure to find a doll you like! By B. Boon This book is very comprehensive. It is well laid out and the directions are detailed, with good supporting photographs. Look closely at the cover photos before purchasing, because this is style of doll that you will be knitting. There is lots of variety in clothing, and I especially like the variety of hair styles. It is my impression that these dolls are aimed more at teens and adults than kiddies, but that might just be my interpretation. Certainly the dolls pictorially represent preteens and teenagers. There is very little sewing-up required, since these patterns require knitting in the round with 3 double-pointed needles. If you are not confident with this technique, don't let it discourage you -- the step-by-step pictures are excellent and you may be able to learn with no difficulty at all. I personally prefer to knit in the round with the Magic Loop technique; the directions can be adapted. 3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Excellent choice for dolls By Adeline317 Very versatile and easy to individualize for a special child. Instructions are easy to follow, even for the beginning knitter. Would recommend to others.
