I have collected a lot of art, craft, and writing books, including about at least a dozen journaling books. This book contains more helpful and interesting material than any other book I've read. The price is a steal as it is cheaper than many of the 120 page books out there (for some reason craft books are rarely longer than 120 pages) and contains 2 books (previously published separately) plus bonus materials. I love that Diehn has a less-is-more attitude about art supplies and unlike other books doesn't use hers as a platform to advertise products. (Many books and most craft magazines waste a lot of pages trying to convince readers that they need specific brands of art supplies to even start making art.) She even teaches you how to make your own supplies from natural materials! The knowledge presented here is encyclopedic, but also a joy to read and very inspiring. Diehn's examples are beautiful and the contributions from other artists are thorough and inspiring. This is not just a book filled with "recipes" for creating duplicates of an author's work, as so many other books are, though there are fun projects to follow along with especially in the book-binding sections towards the end. Everything is meant to be customized to one's own aesthetic and needs. She gives you technical information, history, and techniques that provide a solid learning experience that will help you make visual journals that are your own creations. You will learn the diverse ways that artists and crafters and writers and even scientists use visual journals as tools, as works of art in-and-of themselves and/or as a combination of both. The layout of the book, the photos and reproductions of journal pages are gorgeous (though I think they made a mistake with the cover, which is not as nice as the inside - don't judge it by that! ;)!) The writing is very thorough but a joy to read. There is a lot of interest in journaling these days and there are a lot of books out right now on the subject, many of which are beautiful and inspiring, but if I had to choose only one to have on my bookshelf, this would be the one! If I were going to teach a class on visual journaling (or even on bookbinding) this would be a great textbook. At 2/3 the price of many other art and craft books is an incredible value!

By B.Morgan
This is a lovely book. Great ideas, and photos that are just a treat to look at. She mentions a book in this book called The Pillow Book, by Sei Shonagon, who lived circa 1,000 AD, in Japan. I ordered that book from too, and thoroughly enjoyed it. So, not only do you get terrific ideas for your journal, but recommended reading. Whether you try all or some of her ideas or not, this will be a very nice addition to your library. Inspired!

These were both great books and it's nice to have them all in one. The pictures are totally beautiful and this book is packed with helpful ideas and projects.

Now two of the most successful books by Gwen Diehn, The Decorated Page and The Decorated Journal, are bound together into one comprehensive and inspiring volume. The combined contents offer readers an unmatched collection of great ideas and techniques, from the latest supplies (papers, adhesives, paints, pens) to innovative layouts (mandalas, diagonals, cutouts, grids). Sidebars highlight specific genres, such as pillow books, nature journals, and illuminated manuscripts. Plus, newly added content includes journaling artist profiles along with galleries of their work, new techniques, and a new project where readers learn to make a journal from a butter box.
